

Best Man Responsibilities

So he wants you to be his Best Man?

With great honor comes great responsibility, but we have it covered!

Listed below we have what we think is important to consider.

Being the best man usually means that you are largely responsible for organizing the stag party. Running a Stag Party can often take a lot of preparation and planning. After all it is his last night of freedom and he shouldn't be disappointed.

That's why Stagnightfun.com has created the Essential Stag Party Pack. This pack takes away a lot of the planning and is professionally presented.

You can even customize your stag pack with your very own Stag Caricature.

Plan Ahead

We recommend that you and the guys allow at least a few weeks to prepare for the Stag Party of a lifetime. We advise that you have the stag party a week or two before the wedding so that the stag has time to recover for his big day.

Knowing the Stag

Being the best man you will know the stag better than most and will be well aware of his limits of shame and willingness to participate in his challenges. In most cases the Stag is expecting to be dealt punishment and be humiliated. We recommend planning your party keeping in mind the stag and his personality.

Questions to ask the Stag

- 1) Ask the Stag if he has any ideas on what he wants to do.
- 2) When does he want to have the stag party?
- 3) Are there any particular activities that he just would not do? E.g. making him streak.
- 4) How many mates does he want involved?
- 5) Does he want a relaxed weekend or for it to be action packed?
- 6) Would he want a stripper or go to a strip club?

Inviting the Stag Committee

- 1) Set a date, and make sure that everyone can make it?
- 2) Ask the stag to make a list of the men to invite.
- 3) Check if there are any events happening in the area at that time.
- 4) Does it clash with any other events?
- 5) Is it on a public holiday?
- 6) Formally invite your staggers with invitations.

We have Invitations available for purchase at our Stag Store.

Consider the invite designs. Would some receivers prefer a raunchy design (e.g. a sexy stripper) or maybe a tamer look (e.g. a photo of the stag with antlers)

Location

- 1) Sometimes it can be a good idea to have your celebration out of your home town do avoid bumping into the Hen Party or anyone the stag might not want to be seen by wearing his crazy outfit and doing his embarrassing challenges.
- 2) Think about the activities available in each possible location.
- 3) Make sure to book pubs and event locations in advance and check if they are fine about having a stag party being there or visiting.

Budget

- 1) First off the stag shouldn't have to pay for anything thought out the course of the party.
- 2) Ask around the group you plan to invite and see what their budgets are.
- 3) Think about possible activities e.g. (go-carting, bowling etc) Find out costing for each.
- 4) Will there be much traveling required and how much would it cost.
- 5) You could even consider getting stag party fund set up in advance (e.g. $50 each which covers travel and activity costs)

Always Remember

A stag party is about celebrating manliness and his last night of freedom!

- 1) Make sure the Stag is always looked after and doesn't get into too much trouble; remember getting arrested wouldn't be a high point of a stag night.
- 2) Being the best man it is your responsibility to ensure he doesn't totally regret anything the following day
